

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An electrical architecture for vehicle doors includes a lock subassembly, a control module and a door controller, where the lock subassembly and the control module are connected to the door controller by a single harness. The architecture reduces the mass and bulk of the electrical wires inside the door.

N:\Clients\MERITOR\IP01914\PATENT\Appln1914.doc